

Learning in EYFS:

What History Subject Leaders Need to Know

The EYFS framework is structured very differently to the national curriculum as it is organised across seven areas of learning rather than subject areas. The aim of this document is to help subject leaders to understand how the skills taught across EYFS feed into national curriculum subjects.

This document demonstrates which statements from the 2020 Development Matters are prerequisite skills for history within the national curriculum. The table below outlines the most relevant statements taken from the Early Learning Goals in the EYFS statutory framework and the Development Matters age ranges for Three and Four-Year-Olds and Reception to match the programme of study for history.

The most relevant statements for history are taken from the following area of learning:

- Understanding the World

In planning and guiding what children learn, practitioners must reflect on the different rates at which children are developing and adjust their practice appropriately, referring to the Characteristics of Effective Teaching and Learning. These are: playing and exploring – children investigate and experience things, and ‘have a go’; active learning – children concentrate and keep on trying if they encounter difficulties, and enjoy their achievements for their own sake; creating and thinking critically – children have and develop their own ideas, make links between ideas, and develop strategies for doing things. In addition, the Prime Areas of Learning (Personal, Social and Emotional Development, Communication and Language and Physical Development) underpin and are an integral part of children’s learning in all areas.

Ribblesdale Federation EYFS End Points

Understanding the world involves guiding children to make sense of their physical world and their community. The frequency and range of children’s personal experiences increases their knowledge and sense of the world around them – from visiting parks, libraries and museums to meeting important members of society such as police officers, nurses and firefighters. In addition, listening to a broad selection of stories, non-fiction, rhymes and poems will foster their understanding of our culturally, socially, technologically and ecologically diverse world. As well as building important knowledge, this extends their familiarity with words that support understanding across domains. Enriching and widening children’s vocabulary will support later reading comprehension.

Key Questions – provide opportunities to develop curiosity, where adults can model questions and children can ask questions.

When do you get up?

When do you go to bed?

Can you think of things you do at different times of the day?

Week?

Weekend?

Are all the days the same?

What is different?

What happened the next day/day before?

Looking at objects

What does... look, feel, smell like?

What do you think you might do with it?

What is it made of?

Have you seen anything like it before?

Can you...?

Why...?

How is it different?

What do you notice about the 'old' bear and the 'new' bear?

Looking at pictures in books or photographs

What can you see?

What do you think...?

Can you see any people in the picture?

What are they doing?

What are they wearing?

Are their clothes the same as yours?

What do you notice that is different?
